FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's new, three-day "Bluegrass 'n More" festival is the backdrop for the next performance of "Americana Crossroads Live" on Friday, July 26, in Duncan Recital Hall on campus.

The concert, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will feature Bluegrass performers Kathy Chiavola, Jim Hurst and Missy Raines, and J. D. Crowe & The New South. Doors open to the public at 7 p.m. to allow guests to visit the performers' and sponsors' display tables.

With her country music debut in 1990, Chiavola (pronounced key AH vo lah) hit number two on the United Kingdom's country charts with the critically acclaimed CD, "Labor of Love." She has since won several awards including 1995 Nashville Music Awards' Backup Vocalist of the Year, 1997 Female Vocalist of the Year for the Society for the Preservation of Bluegrass Music in America (SPBGMA) and 1997 British Country Music Awards' International Artist of the Year. She has been nominated twice for SPBGMA's Female Vocalist of the Year.

In 2001, she completed five international tours with sold-out performances in England, Ireland, France, Spain and Japan. Her latest CD, "From Where I Stand," was awarded five stars and selected as one of the favorite recordings of the year by "Country Music People" magazine.

Chiavola grew up singing folk, blues and rock in Kansas City, Mo. After earning a bachelor's and master's degree in voice at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, she studied and sang professional opera with Metropolitan Opera star Eileen Farrell at Indiana University. When not touring or recording, she teaches voice at Belmont University.

The free concert is presented by WMKY 90.3 FM, MSU's public radio to the mountains, and the University's Kentucky Center for Traditional Music (KCTM). Sponsors include Farmers Mercantile, Morehead Tourism Commission, Poppy Mountain Bluegrass Festival, Root-A-Baker's Bakery and KCTM.

A recording of the live performance will air on WMKY on Thursday, Aug. 1, at 8 p.m.

WMKY has produced a CD, "Best of Americana Crossroads Live," which features 18 performances from the first six concerts in the series. The CD may be purchased at Farmers Mercantile, the Kentucky Folk Art Center and Main Street Music in Morehead, as well as CD Central in Lexington.

Additional information is available by calling WMKY at (606) 783-2001 or (800) 286-9659. Details also can be found on the Web at www.wmkyradio.com.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Those who have not yet pre-registered for Fall 2002 classes at Morehead State University will have one more opportunity to do so this summer at the Student Orientation, Advising and Registration (SOAR) program on Saturday, July 20.

SOAR sessions are designed to acquaint students and their families with the University, including academic programs, special services, student activities and residence hall life.

It is advantageous for all new students to attend one of the sessions, according to Joel Pace, associate director of admissions.

"We still have classes available and we still have residence halls available for fall," Pace said. "It's not too late to come to SOAR."

Activities will begin with 9 a.m. registration at the Adron Doran University Center where representatives from academic departments as well as a variety of organizations will be on hand to answer questions and provide information.

At approximately 10:30 a.m., SOAR activities will shift to Button Auditorium. Students will be divided into groups of their chosen educational discipline and proceed to that academic department for advising and course registration.

During that time, an informational program designed for parents also will be presented in Button. Representatives from the Office of Financial Aid, Information Technology, Caudill Health Clinic, Student Housing and other units will address parents' concerns.

Campus tours will be given throughout the day and prospective students may visit a residence hall.

SOAR pre-registration is necessary. Students may register online at MSU's main Web site at www.moreheadstate.edu. Once online, select "Prospective Students" and then follow the instructions for registering for SOAR.

Additional information on the SOAR session and other MSU opportunities is available from the Office of Admissions at (606) 783-2000 or (800) 585-6781.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The death last weekend of singer-actress Rosemary Clooney in California hit home with the staff and supporters of Morehead State University's Kentucky Folk Art Center.

"It's like we lost a member of our family," said KFAC Director Garry Barker. "Ms. Clooney's voice is heard all day long on our videotaped greeting to visitors, 'A World of Wonder,' as it has been since we opened in 1997. She was among our most generous benefactors and she was a significant collector of folk art."

Clooney was a member of the KFAC's national advisory board and had been scheduled to participate in the center's ribbon-cutting ceremony in July 1997 but illness forced her to cancel at the last minute, Barker recalled.

"She was an enthusiastic supporter of the Center and often sent messages of encouragement with her gifts," Barker said. "She was introduced to KFAC by our former board chair, John Irvin of Lexington, who was her friend for many years. You can tell by the tone of her voice on our videotape that she loved folk art and that she loved Kentucky."

Barker said the KFAC would be represented at Ms. Clooney's funeral in Maysville on Friday. He said the Clooney family would be asked to allow the KFAC to continue using her videotaped narration.

"Rosemary Clooney is an important part of our history and we are very proud of that," he added.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Two new courses designed to preserve and promote traditional Appalachian music will be open to students this fall at Morehead State University.

Traditional Vocal Harmony (MUST 104-001) will be offered on Tuesdays from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in 208 Baird Music Hall. Don Rigsby, director of the Kentucky Center for Traditional Music (KCTM), will teach the course.

Practical Theory in Traditional Music (MUST 103-001) will be offered on Thursdays from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in 208 Baird Music Hall. Jesse Wells, KCTM education coordinator, will be the instructor.

Dr. Chris Gallaher, chair of MSU's Department of Music, says the courses were originally designed as day classes, but were later changed to evening classes to accommodate more students.

The two-credit hour courses can be applied toward the Department of Music's minor in Traditional Music Studies. Added in 2001, this minor field of study emphasizes the importance and preservation of the wealth of distinctive music styles in Appalachia.

Students pursuing this minor must complete 21 hours of study, including 10 hours of private lessons and courses in ensembles, theory, listening and vocal harmony. No formal music background is necessary for enrollment in the program.

Registration for the fall semester will be Thursday and Friday, Aug. 15-16, at the Adron Doran University Center on campus. Classes will begin Monday, Aug. 19.

Students with an official check sheet on file can register via MSU's Web site (www.moreheadstate.edu) using their Personal Identification Number (PIN). Those who do not have a PIN are given the option to choose one when they log onto the student user page.

Additional information is available by calling the Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A Morehead State University alumnus is trying to carve out his own country music niche in Nashville.

Rob Hawkins, a native of West Union, Ohio, graduated from MSU in 1994 with the dream of turning his love of music into a career in Music City. He has recently released, "Stompin' Grounds," a four-song CD recorded at Headroom Studios in Nashville, to begin the search for success and his first recording contract.

Hawkins teamed up with fellow Ohio native, acoustic guitar player and producer Dino Bradley to engineer his first recording. Backed by guitarist Tom Bukovac, who has worked with John Fogerty and Wynonna Judd, and studio drummer Shawn Fichter, who played with Trisha Yearwood, Hawkins produced four songs, including three that he had co-written. "Where the Heart Leads," "Home Again," "Preacher Bill" and the title cut "Stompin' Grounds" round out this debut effort on Melchez Records.

Hawkins says his first musical performance was at age four in his family's country church in Adams County, Ohio. Watching the preacher and the congregation applaud his singing, he knew what he wanted to do with his life.

"My grandfather had a Southern Gospel Quartet with my grandmother playing piano," said Hawkins. "He gave me my first guitar when I was eight and before long, I was touring the local churches opening for his ensemble."

Hawkins formed his own band, Odyssey, when he was 14. They played his own original songs at local and regional events during his high school years before he came to MSU on a four-year vocal scholarship.

Since leaving MSU, where he studied voice, guitar and piano, Hawkins has been busy honing his musical and songwriting skills. He has performed at various fundraisers and charity events, sung the National Anthem many times to kick off Cincinnati Reds' baseball games and even toured nationally with the Van-Dells, Confederate Railroad, Fats Domino and The Drifters.

Hawkins now lives in Franklin, Tenn., where he hopes to plant his roots to start building a long and successful music career.

Additional information is available from Hawkins at (615) 771-9547 or through his forthcoming Web site, www.robhawkins.com.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Determining the educational needs of future graduates will be the thrust of an economic focus conference during the annual meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Professional Development Association on Friday, July 12.

Trends in the current job market will be highlighted at the session that begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Commonwealth Room of the Adron Doran University Center on the Morehead State University campus.

"We are looking at what the student will need to know to be the most qualified for a position in their field," said Jacquelyn H. Scott, publicity director for the association.

"By providing information on current trends, students will be better trained for that job," said Scott, MSU coordinator of non-traditional and commuter students. She also is director of the STEPS Project that provides workstudy funds for qualified students.

Among the speakers for the day will be Dr. Dan Connell, MSU associate vice president for academic outreach and support, who will discuss market needs from the academic arena; and Greg Bausch of St. Claire Medical Center, who will speak on the needs of the hospital industry. There will be panel discussions and time for focus groups to share ideas.

A variety of representatives, including those from health care, area businesses, Cabinet of Families and Children and the Kentucky Community and Technical College System, will participate in the one-day program.

The association's stated mission is to provide an opportunity for career growth and prosperity for all citizens of East Kentucky by inspiring quality educational paths, leading to a highly proficient work force.

Additional information and registration are available from Scott by calling (606) 783-2102.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--An award-winning acoustic duo will help kick off Morehead State University's "Bluegrass 'n More" festival during the next performance of "Americana Crossroads Live" on Friday, July 26, in Duncan Recital Hall on campus.

Jim Hurst and Missy Raines will perform in the 7:30 p.m. concert, which also features Kathy Chiavola and J. D. Crowe & The New South. Doors open to the public at 7 p.m. to allow guests to visit the performers' and sponsors' display tables.

An Ohio native, Hurst grew up listening to the Bluegrass sounds of Flatt & Scruggs, Bill Monroe and The Stanley Brothers. His family, with their own musical roots in Frakes, Ky., taught him to play his first guitar when he was four years old. He learned to play fingerstyle and aspired to perform like his biggest influences – Jerry Reed, Clarence White and Chet Atkins.

Since hitting the Bluegrass music scene in the late 1980s, Hurst has played with many different artists, including The McCarter Sisters, Holly Dunn, Trisha Yearwood and Sara Evans. Known as one of the most versatile guitarists and vocalists, he won the International Bluegrass Music Association's 'Guitarist of the Year' award in 2001.

Raines began playing music at age 10 in northern West Virginia. In 1998, she became the first woman to win the IBMA Bass Player of the Year award and repeated the feat in 1999. She also was named 1999 Bass Player of the Year by the Society for the Preservation of Bluegrass Music in America and voted Fan's Choice Bass Player of the Year by the readers of "Bluegrass Now" magazine.

Hurst and Raines first performed together in the mid-1990s as members of Claire Lynch's Front Porch String Band. They released, "Two," their first CD as a duo, in 2000 and were nominated for the IBMA Emerging Artist of the Year Award.

The free concert is presented by WMKY 90.3 FM, Morehead State Public Radio, and the University's Kentucky Center for Traditional Music (KCTM). Sponsors include Farmers Mercantile, Morehead Tourism Commission, Poppy Mountain Bluegrass Festival, Root-A-Baker's Bakery and KCTM.

A recording of the live performance will air on WMKY on Thursday, Aug. 1, at 8 p.m.

WMKY has produced a CD, "Best of Americana Crossroads Live," which features 18 performances from the first six concerts in the series. The CD may be purchased at Farmers Mercantile, the Kentucky Folk Art Center and Main Street Music in Morehead, as well as CD Central in Lexington.

Additional information is available by calling WMKY at (606) 783-2001 or (800) 286-9659. Details also can be found on the Web at www.wmkyradio.com.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Carolyn Franzini believes that everyone has a story to tell. Now, she is searching of those who are willing to tell their stories to her audience.

"People are interested in the things that have happened to others," she said. "Many of the stories pique human interest because of their nature."

Each week, Franzini brings stories of all types to her listeners from some of the nations best storytellers in "A Time for Tales" which airs on WMKY, Morehead State's Public Radio.

With assistance of a grant from the National Storytelling Network in Jonesboro, Tenn., Franzini will expand her program to include more tales from East Kentucky. She plans to interview storytellers in the region and include those yarns in her weekly show.

"A Time for Tales" has aired on Sundays at 4 p.m. during the last year with Franzini, who is coordinator of the annual Cave Run Storytelling Festival, as host and Paul Hitchcock, WMKY program/production director, as producer.

"What began as a 30 minute show has now been expanded to one-hour because of the response from listeners," said Hitchcock. "This is a unique program and Carolyn has been able to develop some really good themes each week.

"There is an interest out there, and hearing from some of the best national storytellers, has made it a popular show," he said.

Besides entertainment, the power of storytelling provides other worthwhile values as well. "It has been used as therapy and to promote healing after a traumatic situation," Franzini said.

Anyone interested in sharing a story is encouraged to call Franzini at (606) 783-1420.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---For the second straight year, an award-winning environmental program, conducted in partnership with Morehead State University, has given Kentucky teachers a new perspective on one of the state's largest watershed habitats.

"Reading the River," a six-day summer workshop for science teachers, was developed by MSU and Northern Kentucky University to promote awareness and understanding of the Licking River watershed, which covers 19 counties in northern and eastern Kentucky.

"Our goal is to give the teachers an understanding and appreciation of the watershed they teach and live in and to provide them with the knowledge and tools they need to get their students involved and excited about learning," said Dr. Brian Reeder, project co-director and MSU professor of biology.

Twenty teachers from 11 school districts embarked on their journey by van and canoe on June 16, traveling 310 miles down the Licking River from its headwaters in Magoffin County to its confluence with the Ohio River. Each day, the group observed and explored the watershed's geology, biology, threatened species, land uses and history.

"The teachers really get excited about all the new things they are learning and immediately start discussing ideas about how they can make use of their new knowledge in their classes," said Dr. Reeder. "Environmental education provides an outstanding tool for them to teach math, biology, geology, physics and social science all within the context of the watershed."

Based on their notes and discoveries, the teachers will develop lessons and activities for their students this fall. Two follow-up workshops will be held during the upcoming academic year to provide additional training and share ideas. The information and lesson plans also will be posted on the project's Web site at readingtheriver.org.

Each teacher received stipends for classroom supplies, as well as credit hours through MSU and NKU. Participants from MSU's service region included: Mary Bach and Dana Maze of Bath County Middle School and Grant Felice of Mason County Middle School.

The "Reading the River" project was honored in April by Gov. Paul Patton and the Kentucky Environmental Quality Commission for its work to address state environmental issues.

The Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education's Eisenhower Professional Development Program provided primary funding for the project. Plans are currently under way to secure funding for 2003 and beyond.

Additional information about the project is available from Dr. Reeder at (606) 783-2957.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A 10-year review of the presidency of Dr. Ronald G. Eaglin at Morehead State University has been completed. Sanctioned by the Board of Regents, the review was conducted by Penson/Strawbridge, a consulting firm from Tallahassee, Fla.

The presidential review involved personal interviews with more than 100 faculty, staff, alumni and area citizens. No written report was prepared; however, an oral report was presented to the Board.

Board Chair Buckner Hinkle, Jr. said of the report:

"The review of President Eaglin was positive and has helped the Board of Regents establish a process for evaluating the performance of Dr. Eaglin and future presidents of the University. The Board sincerely appreciated the participation of everyone involved."

Hinkle noted that the Board of Regents recently approved a new, four-year contract for Dr. Eaglin to continue his presidency of MSU. Dr. Eaglin is currently the longest serving president among the chief executives of Kentucky's public universities.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Nearly a dozen big name musicians and groups will be performing a series of free concerts and conducting instrument workshops during the first annual Bluegrass 'n More festival in downtown Morehead during the weekend of July 26-28.

In addition to Bluegrass music events, the festival will include outdoor arts and crafts, community theatre, children's games, historical displays and demonstrations and other family-oriented activities primarily on First and Main streets, according to Festival Chairman Matt Collinsworth.

Free workshops on the banjo, guitar, vocal harmony, acoustic bass and Dobro guitar are scheduled for July 27. Bluegrass concerts are scheduled for Friday, July 26, at 7:30 p.m. in MSU's Duncan Recital Hall as part of the Americana Crossroads Live series; Saturday, July 27, from 3:40 to 11 p.m. on First Street; and Sunday, July 28, from 1 to 7 p.m., also on First Street.

Musical headliners include Blue Highway, Larry Cordle and Lonesome Standard Time, The Isaacs, Rock County, Jim Hurst and Missy Raines, J. D. Crowe and the New South, Kathy Chiavola, Melvin Goins and Windy Mountain, Ryan Holladay and Don Stanley and Middle Creek.

An added attraction will be four performances of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" by the Morehead Theatre Guild. Directed by George McKee with Jamie Howard in the title role, the play will be presented in MSU's Button Auditorium on July 26 at 2 and 7 p.m.; July 27 at 7 p.m.; and July 28 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for students and are available at CoffeeTree Books.

"We are excited about Bluegrass 'n More being the first significant outdoor event for the First Street Arts District," Collinsworth said. "In addition to great Bluegrass music, there will be dozens of other things for families to see and do. And, except for food, merchandise and the play, everything will be free."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Effective Monday, July 15 – exactly one month after its 37th anniversary as East Kentucky’s first public radio station – WMKY and its sister station, WOCS, will become members of Morehead State University’s new public radio network.

Identified as Morehead State Public Radio, the network includes FM transmitters in Rowan, Lee and Martin counties. It is based in a new digital broadcast center at Breckinridge Hall, newly renovated and expanded home of MSU’s Department of Communication and Theatre.

Network members are WMKY, Morehead, 90.3 FM; WOCS Radio, Lerosc-Booneville, 88.3 FM; and translator W202BH, Inez, 88.3 FM.

“Adopting a network structure is the next logical step in our plan to provide all of East Kentucky with quality public radio programming,” said Keith Kappes, MSU’s vice president for university relations. “With transmitters in three widely scattered areas of our service region, we truly are a public radio network and should identify ourselves as such.

“It is especially fitting to make this change as we begin broadcasting from the new Breck facilities,” Kappes added. “We also hope to resume full-time Webcasting in the coming year.”

“Returning our operations to an academic building underscores our ongoing commitment to provide the best learning environment for the student staff members who make public radio such an important part of the University,” said Dan Conti, MSPR general manager. He noted that nearly 50 students are involved with public radio each semester.

WMKY signed on the air June 15, 1965, as a 10-watt station operating from the Combs Building on the MSU campus. The station later became a charter member of National Public Radio (NPR). Today, the station operates at 50,000 watts.

WOCS Radio, formerly known as WSPE, was purchased by MSU in July 2000. Studios were established at Owsley County High School in Booneville and power was increased from 100 to 1,000 watts. The station returned to the airwaves at full power in November 2001. The WOCS transmitter is located in Beattyville and the station is licensed to Lerosc with an FCC application pending to change the city of license to Booneville. Meanwhile, it is identified with both communities.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--- Darrell Maynard, owner of SouthEast Telephone, has been named the Small Business Person of the Year 2002 for the state of Kentucky.

He recently traveled to Washington, D.C. to attend the 39th Annual Small Business Week Conference where he met with many government representatives from Kentucky.

Morehead State University's East Kentucky Small Business Development Center in Ashland nominated Maynard, a local entrepreneur, for the award. He was selected based on the nomination package the center sent to the Small Business Administration district office in Louisville.

The selection criteria for Small Business Persons of the Year was staying power and a substantiated history as an established business, growth in number of employees and increase in sales, financial condition, innovation, response to adversity and community service.

Small Business Advocate Winners

The MSUEKSBDC also nominated several entrepreneurs as Small Business Advocates. Local entrepreneurs selected as state winners in their respective categories were:

- ♦ 2002 Kentucky Minority Small Business Advocate of the Year & 2002 Regional (8 Southern States) Minority Small Business Advocate of the Year – Gwen Christon, owner of Isom IGA from Isom, nominated by the Pikeville MSUSBDC.
- ♦ 2002 Kentucky Accountant Advocate of the Year – Linda Sumpter, CPA from Inez, nominated by the Pikeville MSUSBDC.
- ♦ 2002 Home-Based Business Advocate of the Year -- Dr. Diane Zwick, founder of Ashland Child Development from Ashland, nominated by the Ashland MSUSBDC.

A small business advocate is an individual who has used his or her professional expertise or personal talents to further the understanding and awareness of small business. These individuals must have taken an active role in creating opportunities for small business.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Andrea Cornett has been named director of institutional research and computer applications at Morehead State University.

Cornett, an Olive Hill native, will be responsible for maintaining and improving MSU's administrative computer database, computer applications and institutional research needs. For the past four years, she has served as the University's director of computer applications in the Office of Information Technology.

"We are fortunate to have someone with Ms. Cornett's background to accept the responsibility for the University's Institutional Research and Computer Application functions. Her experience at MSU as well as her technical and leadership skills made her a viable candidate for this role," said Beth Patrick, associate vice president for planning and technology.

An MSU employee for 20 years, Cornett has worked as a data entry coordinator in the registrar's office and as a computer programmer and senior programmer/analyst in the Office of Information Technology. She also has taught basic computer courses as an adjunct instructor.

In her new position, Cornett will assist in collecting and analyzing data for the University's annual accountability and performance funding reports. She will maintain archives and provide oversight for reporting information on enrollment and degrees. She also will coordinate production of internal publications such as the University "Profile."

Cornett is a member of the Association for Institutional Research and the Southern Association for Institutional Research. She currently serves on several University committees, including the Registration Advisory Committee and the Student Information System Advisory Committee, which she co-chairs. She also serves as the University representative on the Council on Postsecondary Education's Comprehensive Data Base Community.

A two-time MSU graduate, she received her bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration. She and her husband Dan reside in Morehead with their son, Andrew.

Additional information is available from Cornett by calling (606) 783-5237.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Amanda Raye Polley of Tollesboro is the first Morehead State University student to win a Curtis 1000 scholarship from Gamma Beta Phi, a national honor and service organization with more than 60,000 members.

Polley, an elementary education major with an emphasis on P-5 grades and a component in science, was presented the scholarship award at the society's annual spring conference held in San Antonio, Texas. She will use the money for college expenses for the fall semester.

To be eligible for the award, Polley wrote an essay on how she would use Gamma Beta Phi in the future. The role of leadership and community service, as well as working with a group, was part of the paper she presented along with the application.

Letters of recommendation were written by the chapter's advisers, Belva Sammons, director of academic services, and Debra Reed, coordinator guidance/counseling and disability services. The nationwide competition was open to any member in good standing with the organization.

"We are so happy that Amanda received this award," said Sammons. "Her leadership has strengthened the programs and service projects of the society."

Knowledge of the theme was something Polley knows all about. She has been a member of Gamma Beta Phi since her freshman year when she was a scholarship recipient. That year, she was also state treasurer for the organization. As a sophomore, she was membership secretary and this year, served as co-president where she had voting duties. This was the second national conference she has attended.

On the campus, Polley is a member of the Academic Honors Program, Leadership Development Program and Phi Kappa Phi interdisciplinary honor society. She is a member of the Shepherd's Chapel youth group in Vanceburg.

A graduate of Fleming County High School, Polley will be an MSU junior in the fall and hopes to graduate in May 2003. The daughter of Donald Ray and Carla Polley, she is engaged and plans to be married next summer.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--- Mark your calendar. On Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 5 and 6, the Morehead State University East Kentucky Small Business Development Centers will host a Regional Entrepreneur Conference at the Ashland Plaza Hotel in downtown Ashland. The conference theme is “Succeeding in a Digital Age.”

Nine small business workshops will be offered concurrently throughout the conference. Topics will include Doing Business on the Internet, Designing and Implementing a Business Web site, Procurement Opportunities – selling to the state and federal government, Exporting Basics and Selling Overseas and Improving Customer Service.

“This conference will attract entrepreneurs from across our region including central, southeast and northeast Kentucky as well as those from bordering cities such as Huntington/Charleston, W.Va., and Ironton/Portsmouth, Ohio,” said Kim Jenkins, the event’s coordinator.

“We have partnered with the Department for Information Systems and the Institute for Regional Analysis and Public Policy (IRAPP). Through this partnership, we were able to secure a noted author, columnist and presenter. Jim Carroll will be traveling from Canada to serve as the conference’s featured keynote speaker. He has authored numerous books and articles related to business survival in the digital age and how businesses can successfully take advantage of technology through E-Commerce,” she continued.

In addition to small business workshops, the 2002 Regional Entrepreneur Conference will include a reception, exhibitions, and breakfast and luncheon with presentations. If you are a small business owner or if you plan to start a business, you are encouraged to attend this valuable conference, which is sure to offer something for everyone. If you are a small business service provider, you are encouraged to contact our office to learn more about available exhibit space, Jenkins advised.

All inquiries can be directed to Jenkins, general management consultant at the Ashland SBDC, by calling (606) 329-8011.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Kevin B. Hall has been named director of Morehead State University's East Kentucky Appalachian Regional GEAR-UP Project.

Hall, who graduated from MSU with a bachelor's and master's degree in business administration, returned to campus in 2001 as GEAR-UP assistant director. He had previously worked at MSU as an assistant in the Office of Information Technology.

He succeeds Coy Samons, who left to become the principal of Paintsville High School.

MSU's GEAR-UP Project is a five-year, $7.6 million program targeting thousands of middle school students in Kentucky's poorest districts to help them prepare for college. Administered through MSU's Institute for Regional Analysis and Public Policy, GEAR-UP, or Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness For Undergraduate Programs, focuses primarily on improving math and science skills for students in Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Pike counties.

"Thirty-seven percent of students in these four counties live in poverty," said Hall, a Pike County native. "The unemployment rate is higher, average achievement test scores are lower, only half of the adults finished high school and less than half of the students go to college. We have to reach the children early so they will know that a college education is definitely an option."

This fall, under the cooperative effort of Pikeville College, Prestonsburg Community College and MSU, the project will reach more than 5,000 students in 33 schools with a variety of academic, mentoring, tutoring, counseling and summer camp programs. East Kentucky GEAR-UP, part of a nationwide U.S. Department of Education initiative, is the second largest grant of its kind in the state.

As director, Hall will work with coordinators in all four counties to manage detailed budgets and create various programs, camps and activities aimed at keeping students and their parents involved in the educational process during and after high school.

"Our goal is to increase college enrollment from these schools by 10 percent every year beginning with our first group of seventh graders which will graduate in 2006," said Hall.

After receiving his master's degree, Hall worked for nearly three years as an auditor and accountant at Matewan National Bank in Williamson, W.Va. He also was an instructor at Southern West Virginia Community College.

Additional information is available by calling Hall at (606) 874-2669.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A "living icon of bluegrass music" takes the stage for the next performance of Morehead State University's "Americana Crossroads Live" on Friday, July 26.

J. D. Crowe & the New South will be one of three acts appearing at the 7:30 p.m. concert in Duncan Recital Hall on campus. Kathy Chiavola and Jim Hurst & Missy Raines also will perform at the event, which marks the first day of MSU's new three-day "Bluegrass 'n More" festival. Doors open at 7 p.m. to allow guests to visit the performers' and sponsors' display tables.

A Lexington native, Crowe became fascinated with the banjo at an early age and attended many Flatt & Scruggs' concerts and radio shows with his father. By age 15, just two years after receiving his first banjo, he got a job playing with the legendary Jimmy Martin in 1952.

In the 1960s, Crowe became a bandleader and formed the Kentucky Mountain Boys. A regular entertainment staple at local stages and hotels, the band became known as "The New South" in the 1970s. Some of the group's success stems from its ability to collect tunes from outside the traditional genre and give them the Bluegrass treatment.

Since their classic debut album in 1975, Crowe and his Grammy-winning band have become known as one of the finest performers in the industry. The names and faces of The New South have changed many times over the years, but Crowe has helped to nurture many players like Ricky Skaggs, Tony Rice, Jerry Douglas and Keith Whitley, who have gone on to make successful careers of their own.

Named in 1994 as Banjo Player of the Year by the International Bluegrass Music Association, Crowe has been called "not only a Kentucky treasure, but a national one as well" and is cited as a major influence by most leading banjoists today. Earlier this year, he was awarded Kentucky's prestigious Folk Heritage Award by Gov. Paul Patton and the Kentucky Arts Council for his "outstanding effort to perpetuate and promote Kentucky's unique artistic traditions."

The free concert is presented by WMKY 90.3 FM, Morehead State Public Radio, and the University's Kentucky Center for Traditional Music (KCTM). Sponsors include Farmers Mercantile, Morehead Tourism Commission, Poppy Mountain Bluegrass Festival, Root-A-Baker's Bakery and KCTM.

A recording of the live performance will air on WMKY on Thursday, Aug. 1, at 8 p.m.

WMKY has produced a CD, "Best of Americana Crossroads Live," which features 18 performances from the first six concerts in the series. The CD may be purchased at Farmers Mercantile, the Kentucky Folk Art Center and Main Street Music in Morehead, as well as CD Central in Lexington.

Additional information is available by calling WMKY at (606) 783-2001 or (800) 286-9659. Details also can be found on the Web at www.wmkyradio.com.

“LIVING ICON OF BLUEGRASS MUSIC” TO PERFORM AT MSU

J. D. Crowe & The New South will perform for the next performance of Morehead State University’s “Americana Crossroads Live” on Friday, July 26, in Duncan Recital Hall. The concert is part of MSU’s new, three-day “Bluegrass ‘n More, A Family Festival in Downtown Morehead.” Crowe and his award-winning band have been a dominant force in the contemporary Bluegrass industry for nearly 30 years. The concert, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will also feature Kathy Chiavola and Jim Hurst and Missy Raines. The concert is part of a series offered by WMKY 90.3 FM, Morehead State Public Radio, and the University’s Kentucky Center for Traditional Music. The program will be recorded for airing on WMKY on Thursday, Aug. 1, at 8 p.m. Additional information is available from WKMY at (606) 783-2001 or (800) 286-9659.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Studying human memory and cognition is the focus of a Morehead State University psychology professor's research project.

Dr. Michael Cortese, assistant professor, has been awarded a $24,998 grant for his "Recall, Recognition and Semantic Memory Project," which will involve approximately two years of testing and evaluating 240 participants.

Funded by the Kentucky National Science Foundation Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research, the grant extends through March 2004.

Dr. Cortese's project includes collecting recall and recognition memory data as well as imageability and association estimates for 3,000 English monosyllabic words.

"Imageability is how easily you can generate an image of a word," he explained. "So the question would be whether it is easier to remember a word if it has more imageability.

"There are a whole host of other things to look out for in recognition and recall memory," Dr. Cortese said. These include such things as word frequency (i.e., how often a word occurs in print), word length, lexical ambiguity (i.e., the number of meanings a word has) and much more, he said.

According to Dr. Cortese, results from his project should be of interest particularly to researchers in human memory and word processing, including those who have developed computer models that simulate human memory processes.

Dr. Cortese plans to place the results of his study on a database that will be available to researchers throughout the world via the Internet.

On MSU's faculty since 2000, Dr. Cortese earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Nebraska at Omaha and a master's degree in psychology from the University of Kansas. He also received his Ph.D. in cognitive/experimental psychology from the University of Kansas and was a postdoctoral research fellow at Washington University in St. Louis immediately prior to his appointment at MSU.

Additional information about the project is available from Dr. Cortese at (606) 783-2981.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Five Morehead State University students will join Student Government Association President Jason Scott Rainey in leadership roles this academic year.

The University's student body elected the new SGA officers in the spring.

Rainey, a Winchester junior, is the son of Harold and Edith Rainey. A business administration and finance major, he has served as a residence hall president; and freshman and College of Business representative and chair of the fiscal affairs committee of SGA. He is a member of the Residence Hall council and association, Baptist Student Union, Student Golf Association, Finance Club and Student Alumni Ambassadors.

Serving as executive vice president will be Jocelyn Melvin, a West Liberty junior. An exercise science major, she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority, where she is vice president for new member education. She also is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Gamma Beta Phi honor societies, the Order of Omega Greek honorary, and a former chair of SGA's Campus Improvement Committee. Melvin is the daughter of James and Deborah Melvin.

Lindsay Whalen has been elected vice president for campus involvement for the second consecutive year. The daughter of Jerry and Donna Whalen of Xenia, Ohio, she is a senior physical education/health major. Whaley is a member of the Eagles Masters Swim Team and a former MSU Lady Eagle basketball player.

Amanda K. Ramey of Ewing is vice president for public relations. The daughter of Charlie and Susan Ramey, she is a sophomore communications major with an emphasis in advertising and public relations. A member of Chi Omega social sorority, she previously served on the SGA Congress and as a Team PR member. She was the Regents Hall intramurals director, a gymnastics instructor and a member of the Student Activities Council.

The new vice president for finance is Joshua Tankersley, a Bellbrook, Ohio, sophomore computer information systems major. The son of Mike and Dianne Tankersley, he is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity, an MSU Honors Program Student and works as a resident adviser in Mignon Tower.

(MORE)

Josh Gruenke of Maysville is the new vice president for administration. A sophomore government major, he is the son of James and Paulette Gruenke. Serving as resident and peer advisers, he is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and the Student Alumni Ambassadors. He has participated in the Student Activities Council, and the Campus Climate/Affirmative Action and Aramark Food Service committees.

SGA serves the student body by providing an outlet to voice concerns to the administration and giving students an opportunity for campus involvement.

In addition to the six officers, SGA is composed of the Student Congress - 48 representatives who are chosen from each class and various organizations – and the Student Court, whose members are appointed by the SGA president and approved by the Student Congress.

To serve as a SGA officer, students must be enrolled full-time, maintain a minimum 2.5 grade point average and may not be on academic or disciplinary probation.

Additional information is available by calling the SGA office at (606) 783-2298.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Staff Congress has elected new officers for the 2002-03 academic year.

Serving as chair will be Lora Pace, first year program director in Academic Support and Retention. She holds a bachelor's degree in business administration and a master's degree in adult and higher education, both from MSU. She worked as a residence hall director and as area coordinator in the Office of Student Housing from 1990-96 before assuming her current position.

She previously served on the Staff Congress from 1995-96 and again during the 2001-02 academic year. Pace is a member of the Scholarship Committee, the University Wide Retention Task Force, the Holiday Dinner Committee and chair's the MSU 101 Advisory Committee and serves as an MSU 101 instructor.

She and her husband, Joel, associate director of admissions at MSU, have two children, Bethany and Alex.

David Jessie was elected to his second term as vice chair. A 1991 MSU graduate with a bachelor's degree in social sciences, he came to work for the University that year. He previously worked as a residence hall director for five and one-half years before accepting his current position as assistant superintendent of building services.

Jessie, an Olive Hill native, has been a member of the Staff Congress for eight years. He and his wife Debra have a daughter, Breanna, 3, and twin sons, Hunter and David, 7 months.

Rhonda Crisp, secretary specialist with Career Services, will be the new secretary of the Staff Congress. An MSU employee since 1991, she is serving her second year with the group.

She is a member of the Elliottville Baptist Church where she sings in the choir and teaches Sunday School. She and her husband Roger, parts manager at McFarland-Murray Chevrolet in Grayson, live in Morehead. They have a daughter Rachel, a senior business information systems major at MSU.

Established in 1987, Staff Congress was created to form a stronger bond within the staff and to promote cooperation among the administration, faculty and students.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will offer a variety of classes in several programs this fall, including tuition-free courses to some high school seniors so they may get a jump-start on their college education.

While completing that last year of high school, students may enroll in a one, two or three hour course, at no charge, on MSU's main campus, in Mt. Sterling or at the West Liberty center.

To be eligible, high school students must have at least a 3.0 high school grade point average and approval from their high school guidance counselor. To complete the process, an admission/registration application form must be submitted and signed by the student's high school guidance counselor.

If you meet the criteria and are interested in a college course at MSU this fall, complete your paperwork before Friday, Aug. 16. Classes begin on Monday, Aug. 19.

Some of the recommended courses on the main campus include biology, computers, speech, economics, English, geology, government, history and science.

Additional information and application forms are available from Tina Stafford on the main campus by calling (800) 585-6781 and select option 3.

Anyone wishing to learn more about MSU's programs may check out the spring listing of classes online at www.moreheadstate.edu.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---An experienced teacher and distinguished linguist has been selected as the new chair of the Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy at Morehead State University.

Dr. Philip Krummrich succeeds Dr. Mark Minor, who retired from that post July 1.

Before coming to MSU, Dr. Krummrich served as professor and chair of the Department of Modern Foreign Languages at Catawba College in Salisbury, N.C. He also was a former instructor of Spanish and Portuguese at the University of Georgia and had spent 18 years with Drury College in Springfield, Mo., where he served in a number of roles where his responsibilities included curriculum design, teaching and faculty recruitment.

He earned a bachelor's degree with honors in Spanish and English from Tarkio College in Missouri. He holds a master's and doctoral degrees in comparative literature from the University of Illinois.

Dr. Krummrich, who has a native fluency in Spanish, also speaks Portuguese, Italian and French. In addition, he reads German and has some reading knowledge of Latin, Catalan and Galician.

The recipient of the Instructor Teaching Award from the Department of Romance Languages at the University of Georgia, Dr. Krummrich is an honorary member of Phi Lambda Beta (Portuguese honor society), and was named Outstanding Faculty Member by the Drury College student senate. Among his other awards is state finalist designation in the Rhodes Scholarship program.

Dr. Krummrich will have teaching responsibilities as a professor of comparative literature at MSU, along with administrative duties. He plans to teach an English composition course in the fall, and most likely, Spanish in the Spring 2003 semester.

The Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy is one of the largest at the University with approximately 45 faculty with full-time or adjunct status, in addition to staff members.

Dr. Krummrich said that he is looking forward to the challenge of managing such a large staff. "It's an interesting case (in the department) because you've got several disciplines here, so we can take advantage of being grouped into this large department, yet work at maintaining our individual academic identities." He described Morehead as "the friendliest place I've ever been. I'm thrilled to be here."

By Don Bowman
MSU Staff Writer

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Encouraging high school students to become teachers is the goal of a bold new program beginning this fall in five East Kentucky school systems.

Morehead State University's Teacher Cadet program kicks off this month for nearly 100 high school juniors and seniors at Fleming County, Johnson Central, Mason County, Montgomery County and West Carter high schools.

"For most students, one of the last careers they ever consider when they're in school is teaching," said Jill Ratliff, MSU's teacher recruitment coordinator. "Many people never think about the possibility until they've already taken other career paths. Our goal is to identify students with the potential to be great teachers and give them the opportunity to see what a valuable and rewarding career it can be."

Ratliff, a former teacher and principal in Menifee County, says Kentucky is facing a 25 percent loss in its teaching force by 2006, mainly due to a retiring workforce and a growing student population. She says the state will need at least 2,000 new teachers each year for the next five years, especially in the fields of special education, math, science and foreign language.

"We've been working on the Teacher Cadet program for about a year now, hoping to find one school to be our pilot for this project," she said, "but the response was so positive that we decided to launch it in five schools across our service region."

Participating schools must commit at least one teacher as well as agree to transport the students to any schools and classrooms they observe during the course. MSU partners with the schools to provide the curriculum, training and support.

The five teachers in MSU's inaugural group come from a variety of disciplines and four of them are either MSU graduates or are completing graduate work at the University. They are: Crystal Fultz, social studies teacher at Johnson Central; Fern Reed, family and consumer science teacher at Montgomery County; Duane Lambert, former principal and history teacher in Mason County; Melinda Thomas, foreign language instructor at Fleming County; and Connie Baker, science teacher at West Carter.

The Teacher Cadet program was created by South Carolina educators more than 15 years ago. Ratliff says nearly 40 percent of the students in South Carolina's program are now teachers and at least 22 other states are using their curriculum to establish programs of their own.

(MORE)

A South Carolina educator led a three-day training session in July for the five teachers in the University's program. Ratliff says a northern Kentucky school superintendent and representatives from Eastern Kentucky University, Western Kentucky University, Murray State University and the Kentucky Department of Education also attended with hopes of following MSU's lead and establishing similar programs statewide.

"The program has a flexible curriculum and can easily adapt to many different styles of teaching," Ratliff said. "We are in the process of tailoring it to include details about Kentucky's teacher shortage, certification process and the Kentucky Education Reform Act."

The yearlong curriculum has three sections. The first teaches students how people learn, grow and develop. The second recounts the history of education, governance of schools and issues facing education. The last unit covers teaching methods, discipline and classroom management.

Participating students must have at least a 3.0 grade point average as well as provide written recommendations from other teachers. Each class is limited to 20 students and involves hands-on projects, classroom observation and teaching experiences, field trips and expert speakers from MSU. Students will compile a portfolio of their experiences at the end of the program.

"We're very excited about this new program," Ratliff said. "We're getting to these students early so they can discover what teaching is all about and be better prepared when they attend MSU or any other college."

Ratliff says she will meet with the five teachers and their students throughout this first year to discuss the course, their progress and possible changes to the curriculum. She says several other school systems are hoping to join the program next year and these first five teachers may serve as mentors for new instructors in fall 2003.

"MSU's plan to aggressively recruit students into teaching is a reality now," Ratliff explained, "and we want every school in our service area to help us find and train those students to become great teachers."

Additional information is available from Ratliff at (606) 783-9352.
